This map shows the 2 construction phases based on the anticipated ability of a marine contractor to do construction before the 2013 storm season starts and based on the lots that are in the most danger during a single storm season. The intent would be to do as much as possible in 2013 and end up with a single structure in 2014, pending permits and other prerequisites. We would fill the blue gaps in the north half in 2013 if time allows, but it is highly unlikely.

Let me know if there are any questions.
